

CHANGE FORM OF CONTRACTS FOR TRANSPORT

Townships Advised Of New System In Use For Schools.

STATE PAYS PART OF TRAVEL COST

A change in the method of approving contracts for the transportation of children to schools in rural districts was today brought to the attention of school authorities in Adams county who have transportation problems by W. Raymond Shank, superintendent of schools here.

The state department of public instruction pays a certain percentage of the cost of transporting children from their homes to school when the distance is a mile and a half or greater. Heretofore, the contracts for the transportation of pupils have been submitted at the close of the school year.

"Beginning with the school year 1930-31," according to a letter received by Mr. Shank from the state department of public instruction, "all contracts for transportation of school children must be submitted to the department, as soon as executed, for approval."

Has Supply

A new form of contract has been prepared and a supply has been sent to Mr. Shank from whom township school authorities may receive them. In any districts in which contracts have already been entered into, the department has announced that it will accept them, but subsequently, all contracts must be made on the new forms.

All contracts submitted to the department hereafter must be approved by the county superintendent, making that official directly responsible for the kind of transportation provided for the children in his county.

The department pays 50, 60 and 75 per cent of the transportation cost according to certain factors entering into each contract.

CHURCHES TO MAKE PRAYERS

Gettysburg Ministers To Ask For End Of Drought Throughout Nation.

With local thundershowers predicted in Eastern Pennsylvania Sunday afternoon, the weatherman adding "probably," and the temperatures still above normal today, united prayer for rain for the alleviation of the drought in Adams county will be held in Gettysburg Sunday.

"United intercession in prayer will be made by the churches of Gettysburg," the Rev. Edward H. Jones, president of the Gettysburg ministerium, announced today, "at tomorrow's services for relief from the serious drought which threatens the crops throughout the country and endangers the town with a water famine."

Paper Mill Hit

Meanwhile two other nearby towns are facing similar shortages of water as that which is faced here. At Spring Grove, York county, the P. H. Glatfelter company, paper manufacturer, have been forced to close down its paper machines due to the lack of water.

The plant will remain closed until Monday when it is believed that enough water will have accumulated in the company's dam to allow operation next week.

At Hanover, orders were issued by the Hanover and McSherrytown water company to "conserve water in every way possible." Sprinkling of streets, lawns, and washing of cars was temporarily abandoned to meet the emergency.

"Death Car Driver Faces Manslaughter

Lloyd R. Rhone, Hanover, driver of the death car in which Mrs. Mary K. Hahn, also of Hanover, was killed when the vehicle struck a tree near Shepherdstown, on July 13, was arrested Friday on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

The warrant for Rhone's arrest was issued by Justice of the Peace George R. Bentley, Camp Hill, on information of E. A. Snoop, of the Pennsylvania state highway patrol. He was taken in custody by a member of the patrol. Rhone entered bail for $1,000 before Justice of the Peace L. D. Sell, Hanover, pending a hearing.

Littlestown Stirred by Death Of Wealthy Widow of Native

Mrs. Rebecca Wendel Swope, Widow Of Luther Swope, Formerly Of Littlestown, Leaves Fortune Of $100,000,000 To Her Aged Sister.

Residents of Littlestown, where Luther Swope, late husband of Mrs. Rebecca Wendel Swope, one of New York's most wealthy recluses, was born, are wondering today if any immediate descendants of the Swope family will ever share in the $100,000,000 estate left by the New York widow upon her death last Sunday.

The huge fortune was inherited by Miss Ella Wendel, the last of six daughters, who inherited the wealth of their father, John Wendel, a partner of John Jacob Astor, fur trader. A brother, John Gottlieb Wendel, opposed the marriage of any of his sisters, Mrs. Swope marrying the Littlestown man against her brother's wishes late in life. She left no issue.

Lawyer Is Nephew

One of the closest remaining relatives of the aged widow is Stanley Shirk, New York lawyer, whose mother was a sister of Mrs. Swope's husband. He is a son of Mrs. Emma S. Shirk, late of Hanover and formerly of Littlestown. Other relatives lived in Frederick. The New York attorney is one of the managers of the estate.

LEADS IN SALE OF REAL ESTATE

Present Sheriff In Half Of Terms Goes Ahead Of Predecessors.

With his term a year and a half to run, Sheriff G. D. Morrison already has held more sales of real estate than any previous sheriff in Adams county, according to the record of sheriff's deeds filed in the office of C. G. Taughinbaugh, registrar and recorder.

From January 1, 1928, when he took office, until July 24, Sheriff Morrison has conducted 71 sheriff's sales of real estate, with four or five deeds yet to be recorded.

John C. Shealer, who was sheriff of Adams county just before Mr. Morrison, held 59 sales of real estate, while the late John W. Hartman, who filled the office from 1920 to 1924, had 26 sales and his father, the late Howard J. Hartman, who served from 1916 to 1920, had 23 sales.

Sheriff's sales before the elder Hartman's term seldom reached twenty in a four-year term.

Put Aged Woman In Jail For Alleged Liquor Sale

The oldest woman ever arrested in Adams county for violation of the prohibition laws, Mrs. Alice Seibert, 70, Gettysburg R. 5, was in jail here this afternoon in default of $1,000 bail on a charge of the illegal sale of liquor.

Mrs. Seibert was arrested about 6 o'clock Friday evening, at her home on the road leading from

Professor Rosenstengel to Return Home on August 30

Friends Here Receive Interesting Account Of College Professor's Travels Through Old German Cities During Month Of July; Writes Of Hot Weather.

Prof. and Mrs. Rudolph Rosenstengel, head of the department of electrical and mechanical engineering at Gettysburg college, who has been absent from the college on leave for sometime, will sail for the United States from Liverpool on the S. S. Britannica, on August 30, according to word received by friends here.

In a long letter, the professor describes his tour of Germany in detail. He expects to be in Amsterdam on August and later will go on to London.

Portions of his letter from Nurnberg, Germany, follow:

Likes Germany
"Germany is a most delightful country. We have enjoyed every place we have visited so far. Munich, Dresden, and Berlin are very much alike. The buildings are all the same height, four or five stories. There are no detached houses, each block is built up solid from end to end. In Dresden, a few of the places have small yards at the sides of the houses. The public parks over here are very large and there are a number in each town. They all have a great many flowers.

2 Skyscrapers
"Leipzig had the only skyscrapers we have seen, two buildings seven stories high. Spent one day in Wittenberg. Visited Luther's old church and the Luther oak. Wittenberg is quite a small place and seems to have suffered greatly during the war. Ten thousand men from the Wittenberg district were killed in the war.

Weimar is a larger and more prosperous place. We spent three days there. Weimar was the home of Goethe and Schiller. While we were there, about 999 school children with their teachers were there. It is a very common sight over here to see the school children with their teachers visiting the historical places.

Visits Luther Shrine
We of course went to Eisenach and visited the Wartburg. In a room in this castle, Martin Luther translated the Bible in 1521. Parts of the castle are much older dating from 1120. From Eisenach, we took a day's auto trip through the Thuringian forest. This is a fine drive. It is surprising what a large number of forests there are in Germany.

"Nurnberg does not resemble any of the other German cities we have seen. Some of the streets are quite narrow and real old buildings are to be found right in the business section. We visited one which was built in 1313. It is a saloon and has been ever since it was constructed. This was the particular haunt of Albrecht Durer, Hans Sachs and other artists and writers.

Lived A Frugal Life
Although Mrs. Swope had $100,000,000 to draw upon, she led a life as frugal as her sister, Ella, who is still living in the house at Thirty-ninth and Fifth avenue. The house, which originally cost $5,000, rose to an assessment of $2,000,000; but the Wendel laundry was still hung out in a yard facing Thirty-ninth street, by the same servants, now grown old, who hung out long ago when neighbors protested that the sight was beneath the dignity of an exclusive avenue.

The protesting neighbors departed in time and skyscrapers looked down on the fluttering laundry in a gasoline poisoned city garden that could no longer support grass.

After dark, when the curious might no longer see her from the surrounding offices, Ella Wendel slipped out to walk with her dog in that garden. But the dog died. Last year the coachman died, and she ordered the horses and old-fashioned closed carriage sold. This year the old brownstone cornices of the house began to crumble and she had them repaired. The front door had not been unbarred or the front windows unshuttered in a quarter century.

Lived As Recluse

Miss Ella Wendel, the last of the family, has slipped in and out the side door of the house during all these years. One by one, her sisters as they died have concentrated the accumulated real estate by transmitting it in their wills with no terms of endearment.

There never was a distribution of personal jewelry, for the sisters never bought any, nor of clothing, which in the estate of their brother, John Wendel, was appraised at $10. The remainder of the wills was a precise catalogue of properties like a surveyor's report. The family had no known charities.

Mrs. Swope's death was certified by the physician as having been caused by old age and hardening of the arteries. He recorded her as a widow and childless.

AGED TEACHER AND FORMER CLERK DIES

Robert K. Stultz, 71, Teacher For 39 Years In County.

LIVES RETIRED FOR FOUR YEARS

Robert King Stultz, 71, retired Adams county school teacher and former clerk in J. B. Wineman's store, center square, died at his home, 249 York street, at 9:30 o'clock, Friday evening of a complication of diseases.

He was in failing health for four years, but his condition became serious only four weeks ago.

He was the only son of the late Granville A. and Margaret (DeMuth) Stultz, and was born and spent the greater part of his life in Highland township. He lived in Highland township until three years ago when he moved to Gettysburg.

Taught 39 Years

Mr. Stultz taught school in Highland township for 39 years, retiring four years ago. He worked at Wineman's for ten years during lapses in school teaching positions.

Mr. Stultz is survived by his widow, whose maiden name was Miss Sallie B. Scott, two sons, H. Merle Stultz, Minter apartments, Baltimore street, and Walter G. Stultz, at home, and by two grandchildren.

He was an active member of Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church, being superintendent of the Sunday school and organist in the church for many years.

Funeral services from the Bender funeral home, Carlisle street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. D. W. Woods, pastor of the Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church officiating, assisted by the Rev. Edward H. Jones, pastor of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

Mrs. Annie Bentz

Mrs. Annie Bentz, 73, wife of Oliver W. Bentz, died Friday morning at 1:30 o'clock at her home in Dillsburg. Mrs. Bentz died of a complication of diseases, after a year's illness, only two days of which was spent in bed. She was born in Monaghan township and resided throughout her entire life in the upper section of York county. She, with her husband, moved to Dillsburg about seventeen years ago, shortly after they had retired from farming in Carroll township.

Mrs. Bentz was a member of the Dillsburg Lutheran church, a member of the Sunday school, ladies' aid and women's missionary societies of the church and was a regular attendant at services in the church.

She is survived by her husband; one daughter, Mrs. Daniel H. Grove, York Springs R. D.; 11 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. One sister, Mrs. Catherine Fackler, Nashville, Iowa, and a brother, Michael Frysinger, Mechanicsburg, also survive.

Brief funeral services at the late home at Dillsburg at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon with further services in the Dillsburg Lutheran church. Interment in the Barrens' cemetery, the Rev. G. A. Livingston, pastor of the church, officiating.

200 Attend Joint Picnic Of Churches

Two hundred persons attended the joint picnic of the Reformed and Methodist churches at Arendtsville park Friday afternoon. A program of games and sports attracted a large number of participants.

Among the games were a peanut scramble, bag race, three-legged race, potato race, foot races, ball throwing contest, chicken chase and Bible treasure hunt.

After the picnic supper, a baseball game was played between picked teams from the two churches. The Methodists won with a final score of 14-0. The Methodists also won a horseshoe pitching contest, 11-4.

York Man Ends Term Here; In Jail Again

William Powell, York R. D. 6, who was released Friday from the Adams county jail after serving a three months' term for driving while drunk, is in a second jail now facing a similar charge. He was taken from the local jail by Constable Ralph W. Keech, York, and committed to the York jail for a hearing on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The offense for which he is waiting trial is alleged to have occurred April 20, 1929.

NEW QUAKES CAUSING PANIC

New Terrors For Italy As Tremors Continue In Ruined Area.

Naples, July 26 (AP).—The Italian people, still dazed by Wednesday's earthquake, were alarmed today by the continuance of earth shocks.

In the last two days, there have been eight new quakes although they did no severe damage in comparison with the mid-week tremors. Five new shocks were felt yesterday in the same southern region stricken Wednesday.

Meanwhile the government continued to add up the long list of dead. Organized efforts to bring relief to the stricken areas were well underway.

Rome, July 26 (AP).—An official recount of casualties obtained up to eight o'clock last night placed the dead at 2141 and the injured at 4550 in the earthquake.

Even these figures will be augmented as it is still impossible to estimate the number under wrecked buildings.

Potenza, Italy, July 26 (AP).—Five new earth shocks were felt Friday. (Continued on Second Page)

Files Suit To Get $889.20 Damages

An action in trespass, growing out of an automobile accident on the Emmitsburg-Waynesboro road, two miles west of Zora, June 29, was filed Friday afternoon in the office of S. L. Allison, prothonotary, by Ralph Lowe, Hamiltonban township, against Calvin Stem, of Frederick county. Lowe claims $889.20 damages as a result of the crash.

According to the plaintiff's statement of claim, filed by Attorney John P. Butt, both cars were traveling east. Lowe attempted to pass Stem's car when, according to the plaintiff's statement, the Frederick countian drove his machine to the left side of the highway causing the cars to sideswipe.

Arthur Jones As Good As Can Be Expected

Although described as "not yet out of danger," Arthur R. Jones, Broadway, who submitted to an operation for appendicitis at the Warner hospital Wednesday, today was said by hospital authorities to be doing as well as could be expected. Owing to the fact that gangrene had set in before Mr. Jones was operated upon, it has been necessary to maintain damage from the infected area.

Find Old Collection of Fashion Plates Dating Back to Nineties

An interesting collection of fashion plates, showing the styles of men's and women's clothes in the waning years of the nineteenth century, is on display at the tailor shop of J. D. Lippy and Son, Chambersburg street. The fashion plates date from 1895, the year the founder of the partnership went into business here, to 1900.

Some of the styles in men's clothes have not changed greatly in the past thirty-five years, while others would appear ludicrous if worn today. The Covert coat, a short jacket-like garment, once worn extensively, is among the styles on the fashion plates.

Most of the style arbiters in those days showed men wearing high silk

Chamber of Commerce Calls on Council to Curb Water Shortage

Addresses Communications To Borough Council And Water Company Urging Adequate Supply Of Water During Periods Of Drought; Complaints Filed With Chamber.

SEE NEW SOURCES IN TWO STREAMS AVAILABLE FOR SUPPLY TO BOROUGH

Following complaints received from local water consumers, including business interests, the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce has appealed to the borough council to take such steps as are necessary to provide an adequate water supply during periods of drought. A communication, signed by Roy P. Funkhouser, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was addressed to the borough council this morning. A second communication was addressed to the Gettysburg Water company.

It was stated by some of those making complaints that the water company could receive or pump water from sources in addition to those being pumped from at no prohibitive cost. The erection of a bigger dam in Marsh creek and pumping water from the Conewago creek would facilitate matters considerably, during periods of drought, one local consumer stated.

Deny Reports Marsh Creek Is Running Dry

Reports that the supply of water in Marsh Creek would be exhausted within fifty hours were vigorously denied by officials of the Gettysburg water company today.

The supply of water in the stream is just about keeping abreast of the demands of Gettysburg consumers, it was stated, with most local residents strictly obeying the water company's order to refrain from sprinkling streets, gardens and lawns and washing automobiles.

The water company has had several complaints about persons wasting water, but so far has not been compelled to cut off the supply at any home or building.

Creek Is Low

Although Marsh Creek is lower than any time since 1894, the water supply at present is purer than when heavy rains swell the stream with surface water. Several tests are made daily of the filtered water, and so far no trace of bacteria has been discovered.

At the same time, samples of the water are sent daily to the company's chemist, M. B. Litch, Steelton, who today sent the following telegram to C. C. Bream, office manager here:

"All tests of water sampled during the last four months showed very satisfactory results and water is safe for drinking without further treatment."

Americans Lose First Doubles Match

Anteuil, France, July 26 (AP).—The French team of Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon scored a surprising victory over the American combination of Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn in the doubles play today of the challenge round for the Davis cup. The scores were 6-3, 7-5, 1-6 and 6-2.

The highly favored American youngsters, victors over the French in the challenge round last year, and champions at Wimbledon this season, were no match for Cochet's smashing attack and the superb serving of Brugnon.

WEATHER REPORT

Generally fair, except possibly local thunder showers. Warmer in extreme north and west portions tonight. Sunday partly cloudy. Probably local thunder showers.

Local officials of the company, C.

C. Bream, office manager, and H. J. Weikert, superintendent, are not criticized for the present low supply of water. It was said by those registering complaints with the Chamber of Commerce that these officials have been doing everything in their power to alleviate the situation and they are not held responsible. It was said that the water company should take the necessary steps to provide an adequate supply of water during severe droughts.

It was admitted that the public service commission would be appealed to if the water company did not make some provision for a more adequate supply of water during periods of drought.

The communication to the borough council follows:

"The Chamber of Commerce of Gettysburg on behalf of the business interests of this community solicits your cooperation and hopes to be able to cooperate with you looking toward having provision made for an adequate water supply during periods of drought.

Heavy Loss

"The low water supply in this community during the present season has been responsible for the loss of thousands of dollars and this loss will be increased rapidly if and as the drought continues. The entire community also might be subject to great peril in the event of a fire of even moderate proportions.

"The losses in Gettysburg have been sustained due to the response of our citizens to the appeals and demands of the water company that the water supply be preserved. Our garage men and other business interests have responded to this appeal at a financial sacrifice and lawns, gardens and shrubbery are suffering complete ruin. Our citizens should be complimented for their patriotic responses but they should not be perpetually penalized therefor.

"It is our information that other sources of supply are available to the water company at no prohibitive expense. If that is true, conditions such as exist today should not be permitted in the future.

MOTHER, 13, IS CAUSING WORRY

School Board Wants To Know How It Can Enforce Law.

York, July 26 (AP).—The birth of a son to Mrs. Ralph Moody, 13 years old, of Mt. Airy, near here, has members of the school board of Warrington township in a quandry. With the opening of school a month away, the directors are wondering how they will enforce the state compulsory school attendance law which compels children between the ages of 6 and 16 years to attend school regularly.

Marriage of the mother was sanctioned last fall by Judge Henry C. Niles when the girl was 12 years old. She was Beatrice M. Dittow, and a marriage license was issued to her and Ralph E. Moody, also of Mt. Airy, upon petition of the girl's mother.

A ruling in the case may be asked of the state department of education. School board members said.

VELVET HAMMER HITS TEACHER

Native-Born Educator Subject Of Versifier In Harrisburg.

The rhyming columnist of a Harrisburg evening newspaper, writing under the caption "The Velvet Hammer" took the life and career of Fred G. Troxell, professor in the Hanover high school, and native of Adams county, as the subject matter of verses appearing Friday evening.

In connection with the rhymes, appears a picture of Mr. Troxell, a brother of Harry J. Troxell, East Broadway.

The verses follow:

"Fred reads the Hanover high school, a retail house of knowledge, dispensing what, in wholesale lot, he went and got in college. He learned the things in Gettysburg which students there are offered, and while he has treasured, doesn't keep it corked and coffered, but shares it with the hungry hosts of open-minded creatures who hear his words with yawning ears and close their other features."

"And while with human cocoons he competently grapples, he also has a gifted hand for doing things with apples. His Adams County orchards fairly reek of pie and cider, or dumplings which the mama makes from pippins you provide her. They say he has the best of mathematical equipments—developed, may be, counting on his apple shipments."

"He sings among Kwanians, who chant before they settle and operate above the plate with ready arm and metal. Church council member, Lutheran, St. Mark's, a capable stepper before the young, who, lacking salt, profusely shake the pepper. And after all, the thing that makes the educator ample is that he places before the race a notable example."

Air Search Starts For Missing Flier

Port Jervis, N. Y., July 26 (AP).—The hunt for Edward Doty, missing Detroit flier, continued by air and ground by searching parties today.

With three days elapsed since the flier took off at the Matamoros field little has been learned of Doty's disappearance. A careful checkup reveals that he had been sighted about 15 miles from Matamoros sometime after he had taken off from that point and that he was headed in the general direction of Sonora.

Some of his apparent erratic flying was accounted for by the fact that his ship was not equipped with a compass. He had gas sufficient for three hours flying and headed over country known among aviators as one of the worst sections in the east.

Pike county, over which he was last seen, is a rugged, heavily wooded section, sparsely inhabited.

Charles Berry, now catcher for the Boston Red Sox, formerly was an end on the Lafayette football team.

CAR MECHANIC MUST KNOW JOB

No Dubs Will Be Allowed Eynon Declares In Statement.

"In the forthcoming inspection of all Pennsylvania motor vehicles, as ordered by Governor Fisher, no garage or service station will be made an official station which cannot submit proof that it is manned by absolutely and thoroughly capable mechanics."

"No garage" manned by "ham" mechanics or by ear-mechanists will be permitted to inspect cars.

No Gouging
The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania does not propose permitting motor car owners to be "gouged" and "flayed" by conscienceless garages whose sole idea is to increase their revenue.

This statement was made today by Benjamin G. Eynon, commissioner of motor vehicles. As already stated in the newspapers, Governor Fisher has ordered inspection of all Pennsylvania owned cars and trucks during the six weeks beginning September 15.

"The state," said Mr. Eynon, "has required that mechanics who work on airplane engines or fuselages be licensed mechanics. It has required that plumbers be licensed."

"The bureau of motor vehicles, following that trend of thought, will insist that guaranty be given that no 'hams' or tyros will work on cars or trucks submitted for inspection."

VARE DELAYS REPLY TO WETS

Expects To Wait Until Supreme Court Makes Its Decision.

Philadelphia, July 26 (AP).—The Vare organization will not give an answer to the appeal made by the Republican wet group for a gubernatorial candidate to be placed on the pre-empted Liberal party ticket, until after the state supreme court hearing August 19 on the dispute over the perforated ballots used in Luzerne county at the primary last May.

Without waiting that long for the Philadelphia reply, the head of the anti-prohibition group will carry the same appeal to W. L. Mellon, former Republican state chairman and to other organization leaders in the western part of the state.

Mr. Vare is unwilling to give the wet leaders an immediate answer because of the chance that the supreme court might decide to throw out the Luzerne county vote and make Francis Shunk Brown, instead of Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee for governor.

Bruised In Fall Down Stairway

Mrs. Henry Palmer, Littlestown, was brought to the Warner hospital after she fell down a flight of stairs, Friday evening, dislocating her right elbow and suffering numerous bruises. She is the mother of Lloyd Palmer, Gettysburg. Her condition is said to be good.

Robert Lefever, Broadway, also was admitted as a patient to the hospital, Mrs. Louella Kepner, Gettysburg, was discharged as a patient.

Ford Unconscious Agent Of Communism, Priest Says

Detroit, July 26 (AP).—A Detroit priest characterized Henry Ford as an unconscious cause of the spread of communism in testimony given here Friday before the Congressional committee investigating communist activity in the United States.

The statement was made by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, who was called before the committee because his series of radio addresses

MAYOR'S ALLY THROWS UP JOB

Admits He Is Defeated In Attempt To Win Public Favor.

Detroit, July 26 (AP).—The recall of Mayor Bowles sent his chief ally into a self-imposed political exile Friday.

The mayor, holding office in the interim between his recall by a majority of 30,000 last Tuesday and a special election on September 9, received John Gillespie's resignation as commissioner of public works. At the same time Gillespie, storm center of the administration and target for its critics' sharpest darts, announced he was through with politics forever.

His ambition, Gillespie said, had been to win the confidence of the people.

"I am now frank to acknowledge that it is impossible," he said.

Gillespie managed Bowles' campaign in opposition to the recall, spending a great deal of money—newspaper estimates put it as high as $100,000—but he will have no part in the coming campaign in which Bowles will be a candidate.

The resignation came as a surprise. It was the second unexpected development in Bowles' cabinet in twenty-four hours. Thursday Thomas C. Wilcox, police commissioner, abandoned the keystone of the Bowles vice policy—a central squad—and substituted precinct squads, which Bowles had disbanded.

Former Premier Is Banished In Kovno

Lithuanian Dictator Declared Menace To Public Safety And Is Expelled.

Kovno, Lithuania, July 26 (AP).—Augustine Waldemar, former premier and dictator, has been banished for one year to Krottingen, a state-owned domain.

The Lithuanian government took this step because it considered the former chief of government a "danger to public order and safety." His wife, a French-born woman, and his nephew accompanied him into exile. The nephew was wounded at Kovno in May, 1929, by a bomb intended for Waldemar, then premier.

The edict of expulsion reads:

"Under the regulations for the protection of the republic, Prof. Waldemar is banished for one year to Krottingen in consequence of his endangering public order and safety."

Princess Starts Fight For Right To Wed

Wants To Marry Cousin Of King Of Spain; Is 73 Years Of Age.

Paris, July 26 (AP).—The desire of 73-year-old Princess Amadee de Broglie to marry 41-year-old Don Luis de Bourbon, son of the Infanta Eulalia of Spain and cousin of King Alfonso, was the subject of pleading before the Tribunal of the Seine Friday.

Henri Torres, specialist in defending communist agitators, appeared for the princess. He pleaded for her to be granted the same right possessed by others, to seek happiness wherever she sees it, no matter what her age.

Boy, 15, Jumps Under Train After He is Crossed in Love

Valley Stream, N. Y., July 26 (AP).—Weighted down by boyish woes, fifteen-year-old Edward Davis wandered through the streets of Valley Stream all Friday night. Through the long hours he brooded on his belief that the girl on whom his affections centered did not return his love.

And adding to his adolescent misery was the firm opinion that he hadn't enough spending money.

Just at dawn, he sat down and wrote two notes, then he placed his head on a rail in front of a Long Island railroad train, police said.

An engineer on another train saw his body hurtle across the tracks and called an ambulance, but the boy was dead.

on communism. The Congressional committee arrived in Detroit from New York today and opened its hearings in the Federal Building. It planned to take up communistic activities in Michigan.

Representative Fish, Republican, New York, chairman of the committee, asked Father Coughlin for an explanation of his statement.

Father Coughlin said that Ford was "the greatest force in the movement to internationalize labor throughout the world."

"A year ago, on the eve of the automobile show in New York," the witness continued, "Mr. Ford issued a statement that was printed on the front page of every daily newspaper in the United States that he required 30,000 more workers at his plant in Detroit."

"As a result of that statement, more than 30,000 men, who were out of work, flocked to Detroit from Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Texas and other southern states and while the weather was at zero stood in front of the Ford plant trying to get those jobs. There were no jobs for them and the only redress they had was to have the fire hose turned on them to drive them away."

Ignorance Charged
"Getting all those men here in that manner was done through ignorance," Father Coughlin replied.

"Just as the peace ship was sent to Europe through ignorance."

Father Coughlin added that Ford's money was helping the Soviet government in Russia and referred to the $13,000,000 contract Ford signed with Soviet representatives.

Chicago, July 26—Charles Bamberger, who Thursday refused to abide by a decision rendered by a jury of thirteen scientists—one dissenting—that the baby given him by officials of the Englewood hospital was not his, Friday obtained a favorable verdict on his own point of view.

Eight obstetricians contradicted the combined conclusion of the dermatologists, anthropologists, ophthalmologists and blood analysts that baby Bamberger was baby Watkins and that Papa Bamberger must trade infants with Papa Watkins.

The new jury, which went into conference Friday after Bamberger's flight from the session of scientists—with the baby which had been passed out to him by the hospital nurses as his—was headed by Dr. Lewis Eastman, of the Englewood hospital staff, the institution accused of exchanging the babies.

It arrived at the conclusion that only the tags had been mixed. When the respective parents got home they found their babies each branded with the surname of the other family.

Bamberger Satisfied

Mr. Bamberger, who is a bricklayer, at first announced that he and his four brothers—all bricklayers—would barricade themselves in his home and give battle to anybody who attempted to take away the baby. Later he agreed to attend a conference with Health Commissioner Kegel, at which the new jury went into a short session and announced a verdict which contradicted the scientists but satisfied Mr. Bamberger and his four militant brothers.

Mr. Watkins, however, has not reached a decision in the matter. He went home with his wife and the baby, which the physicians and Mr. Bamberger say is his, but which scientists say is by birth a Bamberger.

"Hell Of A Note"
"Whatever you look at it," observed Papa Watkins, "it's a hell of a note. I am reasonably certain the Bambergers have our baby and I can never be satisfied at heart that the kid I've got is mine. I think I'll sue the hospital for $100,000 for the uncertainty and the life-long heartache that will result."

I don't give a damn what Watkins thinks or whom he sues," said Papa Bamberger. "We're satisfied the baby we have is ours and we're going to keep him."

START WORK IMPROVING THIRD STREET IN HANOVER

Hanover—With a steam shovel and three trucks on the scene the Paul I. Hostetter Company, York road contractors, began work on Thursday afternoon on the improvement of Third street for a distance of 1,200 feet. A concrete roadway will be built extending from curb to curb. The width of the street at this point varies from 28 to 30 feet. Eighteen feet of the street will be being paid by the state while the borough and abutting property holders have agreed to finance the remainder of the project.

Former New York Jurist Is Found Guilty Of Swindling Poor.

New York, July 26 (AP).—W. Bernard Vause was convicted Friday of using the mails to defraud poor East Side investors while he was sitting as a judge on the county bench.

Less than four hours after the jury had taken the case the court was notified that a verdict had been reached. The former judge, stumbling like one moving through a nightmare, was led in to hear his fate supported by two brothers, one a co-defendant and the other a doctor not connected with the case.

USE WHEAT TO FEED CATTLE IN MARYLAND

Frederick—In reply to numerous inquiries regarding the advisability of farmers retaining their wheat and using it for dairy feed, or selling it at a figure far below the normal prices, County Agent Henry R. Shoemaker stated, Thursday he believed it might be wise for farmers who had other ingredients of dairy feed, such as corn, oats or barley, to use wheat for feeding, rather than sell it, but those who could not dispose of some of their crop in feed would probably do well to sell.

HANCOCK THREATENED BY FIRE IN FOREST

Hagerstown—Twenty-five residences in Hancock were threatened with destruction by fire late Thursday when a mountain blaze burning over a half mile front fiercely swept in a southern direction to within 200 or 300 feet of the houses.

The fire, which had been burning for several days, did not become dangerous until a strong north wind fanned the flames and brought out every able-bodied male citizen of the town to help combat the threatening flames.

The fire has burned over about 1,000 acres but was believed to be under control at 11 o'clock last night. Several hundred citizens of Hancock, headed by Fire Chief Thomas Gillice were using "back firing" methods and unless heavy winds start, the town is not believed to be in immediate danger.

UNABLE TO SIT IN 2 HOLES AT ONCE; LOSES

York—Owing to the fact that Mrs. Raymond Mears, this place, was unable to sit in two holes at the same time, the Edison Light and Power company, late Thursday afternoon won out in a fight to place a pole in front of her home.

The crew of workmen wanted to place a power pole in front of her home. She did not want it there. When the workmen dug a foot or more into the ground, Mrs. Mears got a bench and sat over the hole.

The crew started to dig in another place, and the woman went to that hole. The other crew of workmen started to work at the other hole.

SECOND ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE UNSUCCESSFUL

Chambersburg—Having escaped from officers on a previous occasion, Charles Atherton, 36, of The Corner, near Mercersburg, made a run for it Thursday morning when Deputy Sheriff Huber rose up in front of him at the Atherton home. This time, however, Atherton ran into the arms of Sheriff Renfrew and Police Chief Stevens of Mercersburg who were lying in the tall grass and who arose as Atherton dashed up at a dead run.

Some time ago Police Chief Stevens found some liquor in Atherton's car, which was parked in Mercersburg. Officers went to his home but when they knocked at the rear door Atherton fled by way of the front door.

DAGGER

By Mary Dahlberg

SYNOPSIS: Dagger Marley, 16-year-old niece of Jim Marley, Texas rancher, rescues Blaine Howard, American adventurer, from some Mexican insurgents, and falls in love with him. Howard, who has a wife he does not love, resists the temptation to return Dagger's affection and leaves the Marley ranch to join the Allied armies in France. Later he is reported missing and probably dead, and Dagger is heartbroken. Dick Welling, an Englishman, who has come to the ranch to forget his past troubles, leaves to buy horses for the British army. America enters the war, and Dagger goes to visit an aunt in San Antonio, where she meets Captain John Vaneering, flying ace. He gives her an opportunity to learn to fly, and falls in love with her, but she belittles his protestations of affection.

Chapter 11

DAGGER TAKES TO THE AIR
Meanwhile Dagger's flying lessons continued. Daily, if the weather permitted, and when it didn't, Stedman gave her shopwork, taking a motor to pieces, or lectured her on air-currents and problems and the science of stunting.

She was an apt pupil. After her second flight she wanted to take the controls alone, but Stedman curbed her enthusiasm for a week.

"You can do it, I believe, but there's no sense in being hasty. Wait a few days."

She was appreciative of his judgment, and waited, however impatiently, keen to merit his confidence. And in consequence her first flight, with her instructor sitting idly, only prepared to take the controls if she made a radical mistake, was an entire success.

Several days later she was allowed to make a solo flight, equally successful. Then a couple of weeks more, and she had a credit of four hours in the air, unguided, and was a full-fledged pilot. Even Aunt Esy espied that qualifying flight, and was impressed, despite her dubious certainty that such doings were undermining the status of womanhood.

There was a madness in the air, those days. The world was become a forcing-house for youth. Over night, almost, boys and girls sprang from adolescence to maturity, eager, avid of experience, restless under the impending threat of death. Vaneering had lived in this atmosphere for three years; it had impregnated his being. "Be happy today for tomorrow you'll probably be dead" was his motto, as it was his comrades', and he preached it quite honestly.

Dagger, like most of her generation, received it unquestioningly. She saw it being verified all round her. Boys she had danced with the night before crashed in the morning flights; brothers of girls she knew vanished blankly in the nightmare of the trenches.

Vaneering seldom spoke on this theme—perhaps because he was subconsciously aware that Dagger required no arguments to accept it. But if he plumed himself on being directly responsible for her acquiescence to it, he was mistaken. Although she compelled herself, with iron resolution, to keep Howard out of her thoughts, the memory of his loss was unescapable. He had come into her life, and gone as these other boys and men were going out of other people's lives. And, resentfully, she resolved not to be so robbed of love again.

Yet she tolerated no familiarity from Vaneering, and they almost never talked sentimentally. The bond between them was deeper, as a matter of fact; their enjoyment of flying and the mute attraction of two violent and untrammelled characters.

Dagger never wearied of his company, and gradually he came to monopolize her time. If they were not at the flying fields, they were driving somewhere, invariably at headlong speed, dancing or dining. Hostesses, now, invited Vaneering through Dagger—"Oh, and you'll bring Jack, won't you?" No party was complete without them, for Dagger was becoming as well known as he was. The local press had devoted columns to her qualification as a pilot, and special articles were being published all over the country.

As far as Vaneering was concerned, she more or less blindly dodged reflection. He was attractive, a pleasant comrade, whose presence started those disturbing little currents of emotion which had first frightened, and, finally, soothed her.

He had a vice, however, which bothered Dagger occasionally. A heavy drinker, there were times when he overstepped her mark. At such times, he was scrupulous to avoid her, but she always heard of it. Willy, maybe, would come in, pop-eyed, to report:

"Hear about Vaneering's bust last night? He crowned a feller down in Danny's—wanted to fight the M. P.'s. I tell you, he's wild when he drops off the wagon."

Dagger spoke to him once on the subject, and he was winningly penitent.

himself."

He laughed shortly. "Full control is right! In France a pilot who can't keep control after he's full will crash in a week. They fight drunk half the time."

"But you mustn't," she protested. "Of course, you'll crash sooner or later, if you're drunk. Anybody would."

He shrugged, his eyes, inflamed and pouted, lighting up with a blend of affection and amusement. "Regular little saint you are! Don't worry about me. We all crash sooner or later."

"You mustn't talk like that, Jack. Why, if you—"

"Would you care a little bit?" She forced herself to impersonate.

"I'd care if anyone crashed. It's—it's so unnecessary."

Weeks slipped away, and without realizing it, the two began to take each other for granted. They excited the derision of their young friends by the decorousness of their relations; they did not know that the repression they practiced—mainly through Dagger's self-control, the automatic recollection in each moment of temptation of the moment she had slipped with Howard—comprised in itself the essential element of danger. Touching each other, they thrilled. Each was happier for the sound of the other's voice. All the requisites of physical attraction bound them. A match, and—the sparks that flickered in two hearts would flare up into one flame.

Of course, this was merely a question of time, and the match was struck a light, as might have been supposed, without any warning.

War's relentless call suddenly releases the pent-up love of Dagger and Vaneering for each other in Monday's thrilling chapter.

World War Ace Held For Purse-Snatching

Los Angeles, July 26 (AP)—A man definitely identified as Captain George R. Clifford, war-time squadron leader of the British Royal Air Forces who shot down forty-two enemy planes, is under arrest here for purse-snatching. Psychiatrists said the aviator is a victim of "repressive insanity."

The man's statements that he was Captain Clifford was confirmed by a passport issued in Washington in 1927 and other papers verified by Government officials giving his war record for bravery from virtually every allied nation were found in his apartment. He said he came here from Brockton, Massachusetts, seeking work as an aviator.

"I realize what I have done, but don't know why I did it," Clifford told officers.

AMUSEMENTS

At The Majestic

Phillip Holmes did not have to be rehearsed for his part in Edmund Goulding's "The Devil's Holiday," in which Nancy Carroll is starring at the Majestic Theatre Monday and Tuesday.

For more than a month he witnessed the growth of the part he plays, that of David Stone, unsophisticated farm boy, for he was with Edmund Goulding, author and director of the play, from the time the idea for the character was conceived until the time for production at the Paramount Hollywood studios.

When Goulding entered into contract to direct the story it was a mere idea. He journeyed to Palm Springs to write the play and Holmes, who was selected for the leading male role, went with Goulding to sit and listen to the author-director dictate his story.

Nancy Carroll is starred in the principal part, that of Hallie Hobart, the gold-digging manicurist who tries to pull a "con" game on Holmes and then falls in love with him. The locale is the great American wheat belt.

STATE SENATOR SLAIN IN S. C.

Victim In War Of Series Of Assassinations In Berkeley.

Minck's Corner, S. C., July 26 (AP)—E. J. Dennis, state senator of Berkeley county, was shot down and probably fatally wounded on the street here Thursday in the latest episode of this county's bloody history of gun fights, ambushes and assassinations of recent years.

The 54-year-old senator, long a dominant figure in Berkeley's turbulent politics, was taken to a Charleston hospital, where it was said his recovery was doubtful. W. L. Thornley, 35-year-old Monck's Corner resident, charged with emptying a charge of buckshot into Dennis' head as the latter conversed with two friends in front of the postoffice, was taken to the state penitentiary at Columbia for safe-keeping.

Extraordinary precautions to prevent further trouble were taken by Governor John G. Richards, who ordered his entire force of twelve state constables here, together with sheriffs and deputies from nearby counties.

GAS

It has been scientifically established that bacteria in milk multiply 150 times as fast at 70 degrees as at 50 degrees. And from the laboratories of scientists and U. S. Government investigators also comes this warning: keep ALL fresh foods always below 50 degrees — foods exposed above 50 degrees deteriorate rapidly.

Have you ever taken the temperature of your refrigerator? Unless it meets the 50-degree test at all times, no refrigerator is a safe protector of foods. How much is at stake should foods spoil in your refrigerator? The health of some one not aware of the danger?

Operating with a tiny Gas flame and a trickle of water for less than the cost of a pint of milk per day, the Gas Refrigerator safeguards all perishable foods, freezes ice cubes and delectable desserts. Not once during the year does the temperature rise above 50 degrees. Let us give you facts and figures on installation and operating costs of this perfect cold keeper.

A THOUGHT for the DAY
By
AMOS R. WELLS
Wanted:
More Pledges

A SOLDIER, brought into a District of Columbia police court on a charge of intoxication, declared that if the judge would give him a chance he would never touch strong drink again. The judge gave him the chance. He bade him raise his right hand and solemnly swear that he would keep from intoxicating liquors for the next two years. The soldier was earnest in the matter, and God grant that he may keep his pledge.

It is high time for a new pledging campaign in this country, a campaign that will summon all American manhood and womanhood to resist the devil's temptations to drunkenness. Only human will power, reinforced by the strength of the Almighty can withstand the craft of the arch-deceiver.

And in many more matters than intoxicants we need to exalt our pledges. If we are church members, we have taken solemn pledges upon us. Are we true to them? Do we even remember what they were? If we are married, we have made some vital and sacred vows. Are we true to them? In many other relations we have entered into agreements. Is our word as good as our bond? Have we forsown ourselves before our God?

"Take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth."

TEN YEARS AGO
Horace E. Smiley, Register Chairman: Horace E. Smiley, register and recorder of Adams county, was elected chairman of the Democratic county committee at a conference of sixty leading workers of that body, held in the Hoffman Hotel.

Mr. Smiley, who entered politics after his return from service in the American Expeditionary Force, succeeds Charles Williams, who has held the chairman ship for several years.

C. William Troxell, a member of the staff of the Citizens Trust company, was elected treasurer of the county committee, succeeding Paul A. Martin.

Coach Berryman Here: R. N. Berryman, known on the football field at "Punk" Berryman, has arrived in Gettysburg for a short stay. Four years ago he coached the Gettysburg colleg eleven to its only victory over Bucknell in seven years.

Free Dinner for City Children: The first entertainment to the children of the New York Society of Inner Missions will be given on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when Kenderton S. Lynch, owner of the Eagle Hotel, will tender a free dinner to the sixty-seven boys and girls, who are here now.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

AFFECTION FROM SACRIFICE

THE things we sacrifice for to gain become peculiarly a part of our very selves.

Daily do we bargain for the best chance at life! We exchange the sweat of our brow for a taste of momentary joy, for a vine across the walls of our home, or for a glimpse into some unknown realm of creation.

For two weeks I have been visiting towns and cities and countries never before seen. In nearly every one of them are to be found monuments to the brave. I have stood before a large number of them and wondered at the sacrifice of those who gave so much. Before one of them, especially did I ponder, for I remembered that during the life of that man, he was mostly abused and maligned. But he cared nothing for his own life. His thought and service were ever rendered in behalf of those who misunderstood and who were weak. Now people love the very spot that marks his grave!

It is sometimes difficult for many to understand the affection that some have for material things—especially things of rare or unusual beauty. But when it is learned that those things cost dearly in sacrifice of time, money, or strength, then that love becomes plain and understandable.

When you sacrifice to make someone else happy, you tap a well of happiness within your own heart. And from that well you drink to the refreshment of your soul.

Homes, cities, countries are not built from materials, but from the sacrifices of men and women who tenant them for a little while, and then pass them on to those who follow. It is this inherited affection that forms the substance for all our courage and our faith.

We cannot hope to gain any precious thing without great sacrifice. And only the worthy tread life with a steady step, for worthiness, after all, is but another name for fearlessness brought about by love through sacrifice.

Just Folks
By Edgar A. Guest

A BOY FOR COMPANY
A boy for company and, oh,
A man I now must be!
No time for petty thoughts and low
Or faults those eyes may see.
The worst within must never show
To him who walks with me.

Oh, I may rant and I may rail
When petty cares annoy,
And men may learn that I am frail
And see a loss destroy
My strength, but I must never fail
When I am with a boy.

No matter what the cause may be
Nor howsoever tried,
The shame that grownups find in me
With courage I must hide,
That only good the boy shall see
Who travels at my side.

A boy for company, and oh
'Tis man's supremest test,
God grant my faults shall never show
Nor all my sins be guessed,
Whenever with a boy I go
I ask to do my best.

Little Jack Rabbit
By David Cory

"Hipperty, hipperty hop I go
Over the clover tops.
I'd say with a smile
That every mile
Is nearly two thousand hops."

sang Little Jack Rabbit one morning.
Oh so early, ere Mr. Merry Sun had hardly dried his nightcap to make his daily run.

Dearest me, there goes my type-writer into poetry just like a duck into water, but forgetting to put it into verse.

Pretty soon, not so very far, the bunny boy came to the Old Mill Pond where all day long on his log Granddaddy Bullfrog contentedly sat catching the flies that came too near for their own safety.

"Hello, little rabbit," croaked the old gentleman frog, taking off his gold rimmed spectacles to wipe them with a clean leaf, "how are all the folks at home?"

"Nicely thank you," answered the bunny boy, politely. "Mother has a new apron. Uncle Lucky sent it over this morning in a pretty box."

"I'll wager it's mighty becoming," laughed Granddaddy Bullfrog, replacing his spectacles. "That reminds me that I must go down to the Three-in-One-Cent Store for Mrs. Frog. Dear me, how I hate to shop for ladies. I always buy the wrong thing."

"Maybe I can help you," suggested the kind-hearted little bunny boy. "What do you wish?"

"Oh, a hair-pin," answered Granddaddy Bullfrog, not forgetting to snap up a fly that flew close to his nose.

"What kind of a hair-pin?" asked the little rabbit, hitching up his knapsack.

"That's just it," sighed the old gentleman frog. "Mrs. Frog always wants the latest style, but it never is the one the lady salesman gives to me. Dear, dear, I'm puzzled before I start, but when I reach the store I'm dazed. Yes, that's the very word. I just take what's given to me."

"I'll get it for you," promised the bunny boy, and away he hopped over the log bridge that spanned the Bubbling Brook, across the Pleasant Pasture and up the hill to Rabbitville.

"Charge it to my account," shouted the old gentleman frog, but whether or not the little rabbit heard him, I don't know, for he never stopped until he reached the Three-in-One-Cent Store. Then all out of breath, he halted at the pin counter, behind which stood Mrs. Pelican, a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles on the ridge of her long beak.

"I want a hair-pin," said the bunny boy. And the lady pelican, thinking it was for pretty Lady Love, the little rabbit's mother, handed him one that just suited Mrs. Frog when the little rabbit returned to the Old Mill Pond.

"Dear, dear, you're a clever boy. Here is a carrot cent," laughed the happy old frog as he sat on his log and smoked to his heart's content.

SUNDOWN STORIES
POSSIBLE DISCOVERIES
By Mary Graham Bonner

The Little Black Clock and John and Peggy were having a talk at the end of the magic path. The clock was planning a big trip for their one and so they all decided they would simply talk this evening.

It was always such fun talking to the Little Black Clock. He was always ready for them, every evening, and how they loved it when he stretched his little short legs which they could never really see in the daytime, and when he would come down from his place on the desk in the back hall.

"I wish I could discover something," John told the Little Black Clock.

"But then," he added, "maybe I would discover something and not know that I had."

"What do you mean?" Peggy asked.

"Don't you remember how we saw those children who discovered the pretty stone over in Africa when the Little Black Clock turned the time back?"

"They didn't know—they never knew—that they had discovered a diamond and a part of the world where many, many diamonds were to be found."

"Lots of people haven't known their own discoveries, so maybe if I discovered something some time it will be a great discovery even if I don't know it."

"So it's lots of fun thinking that perhaps some things may turn out to be great after all."

"I see," said Peggy. "I found a very pretty piece of china—just a tiny piece—and it was a lovely color of pink. Maybe that will turn out to be something very old."

"Maybe," the Little Black Clock said. "One never can tell."

"But I do wish I could see something like a kettle of water boiling and discover how an engine can go by steam because of it," John added.

"That's the fun of discovery," the Little Black Clock agreed. "You never know when something is going to be wonderful."

OZARK VET IS 118, IS CLAIM

Too Old To Fight In Civil War And Recalls 28 Elections.

Poplar Bluff, Mo. (AP)—Speaking of longevity and 156-year-old Turks, here's a chap from the Ozarks who claims 118 summers and who was too old to serve in the civil war.

Just now, while Zoro Agha the Turk is demonstrating to America the spryness of his reputed 156 years, Thomas N. Kemp is planning to celebrate his 119th birthday anniversary soon.

Born In 1811

This American-born patriarch says September 10, 1811, was the date of his birth, and folks around Poplar Bluff generally accept his claim.

When the War of 1812 broke out, Kemp says, he was just toddling around learning to walk. He says he remembers the presidential election of 1816 and every campaign since.

And there's nothing very infirm about this rugged old farmer. He thinks nothing of walking the five miles from his 40-acre farm in the Ozarks, to Poplar Bluff.

Outside of being partially deaf, Kemp says he, "as well as a man reasonably can expect to be when he's nearing his 119th birthday." His memory still is good and his eyesight keen.

He still likes to cultivate his farm—and he says he's been farming for 110 years, since he was eight. Even now he always can find time to get out his shotgun and go hunting "with the young folks."

"I was born in Huntingdon, Carroll township, Tennessee," says the aged farmer. "My parents, Aaron and Tabitha Kemp, died when I was young. I was working regularly when I was eight."

"And in those days," Kemp recalls, "boys had to work from the time they could lift a hoe."

His first "regular" job was as a rider on the Pony Express and Mail. He was married in Kentucky in 1836, and his first wife died five years later. Two children were born to them.

Married 2 Times

In 1841 he was married again, this time to the sister of his first wife. She died 40 years later. They were the parents of seven children, six of whom are dead. One daughter, Amanda, is 58, and Kemp makes his home with her.

"Some persons doubt my age," says Kemp, "but my daughter and other relatives have checked all possible sources, and they are certain I was born in 1811."

"Of course I am looking forward to many more birthdays," he insists.

The Tragedy of an Unmarked Grave

A life lived in its fullness . . . friends . . . family . . . loves and joys—yet come to such a tragic end—to lie there in an unmarked grave.

Every grave should be marked with a fitting Memorial to the name which once was vibrant with life and energy. Many beautiful Monument designs are now on display in our yards.

WOMAN GUARDS RUSSIAN GOLD

Revolutionist Serves As Soviet Minister Of Finances.

Moscow (AP).—A modest, self-effacing mother directs the spending of nearly two billion dollars annually for Soviet Russia. And she still can make all her own clothes and do her own cooking! Barbara Nikolaevna Yakovleva holds one of the world's big jobs. She is Russia's commissar of finance, a post comparable to that of Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the U. S. treasury.

Salary Is Small

Her salary is $150 a month—a tenth of Mellon's—although millions of rubles pass through her hands daily.

She is the only woman member of the Soviet cabinet and only one other nation, England, has a woman cabinet officer.

Once an obscure revolutionist, hunted by the czar's secret police, Madame Yakovleva watches expenditures of the government with the shrewd eye of a careful housewife. In her vast financial household she employs 15,000 men and 2,000 women.

She, herself, toils 16 to 18 hours a day, Sundays and holidays included.

She lives in a small, 5-room flat near a workers' settlement with her aged parents and her two children.

Still Scrubs Floors

Her husband, also a revolutionist, is superintending construction of a big factory at Saratov, on the Volga.

Years of privation and hardship taught Madame Yakovleva to be intensely practical.

That is why she does not conceal the fact that she can still scrub floors, wash clothes, make all her own dresses and do her own cooking.

She wears no jewelry or other embellishment and does not believe in short skirts, lipsticks, face powder, or expensive dress and lingerie. Her habitual garb is a plain, inexpensive white shirtwaist with black skirt and lisle stockings.

Looks Mother's Part

To you correspondent she looked the part of a good mother, a woman of quiet demeanor, neatness and great charm. She is 45, fair, with blue eyes, chestnut hair and a soft even voice.

Her only hobbies are mathematics, music and the radio. She holds a master's degree in higher mathematics and is an excellent pianist. She sometimes finds time to go to the theater, the ballet or a concert.

Her present high post was won by the hardest toil, undemitting service to the revolution.

Five times she was exiled or imprisoned by the czarist regime, spending years in Siberia.

She knew and worked with Lenin and Trotsky.

She is shy about herself, extremely reluctant to discuss her own life achievements or talents, insisting that in the U. S. S. R. it is the system, not the individual, that counts.

"Our government gives every one an equal chance for success," she said.

" must not be regarded as an exceptional case. All women in the Soviet Union are given the same opportunity. Many other women besides myself hold important executive positions. Several are presidents of regional governments.

"Within a few years we probably shall have hundreds of women in high administrative posts."

Confessed Slayings

Declaring his wife was no longer able to care for them, Taylor Hott, Martinsburg, W. Va., confessed to police that he killed his three small children.

YOUTH OF 23 IN BIG FIRMS

Inherits Places Held By His Uncle And Father In Corporations.

New York (AP).—Director in nearly 50 industrial concerns at the age of 23—such is the responsibility on the shoulders of James C. Brady, Jr.

Slightly more than a year ago "Jim" Brady was graduating from Yale, proud of his major "Y" won as a member of the hockey team, and of his membership in Scroll and Key, senior honorary society.

Inherits Fortune

In college he had forecast his own future as that of a banker. Now he has plunged into the financial world that brought vast fortunes to his uncle, Nicholas F. Brady, and his father, James C. Brady, both now dead.

Taking up the reins of the family fortune, he is about to succeed his uncle on the boards of directors of a list of companies that makes up much of the "blue book" of American industry. Already he is a director of the New York Edison company and the Electric Storage Battery company.

Becomes Director

Soon he will be helping direct the fortunes of such concerns as Union Carbide and Carbon company, Anaconda Copper Mining company, Central Hanover Bank and Trust company, Chile Copper company, Brooklyn Edison company, Chrysler Motors and many others.

In his Yale days Brady often was a week-end visitor at Northampton, Massachusetts, where Miss Elliot Chase of Providence, Rhode Island was attending Smith college. They were married soon after Brady was graduated from Yale. Both are social registers.

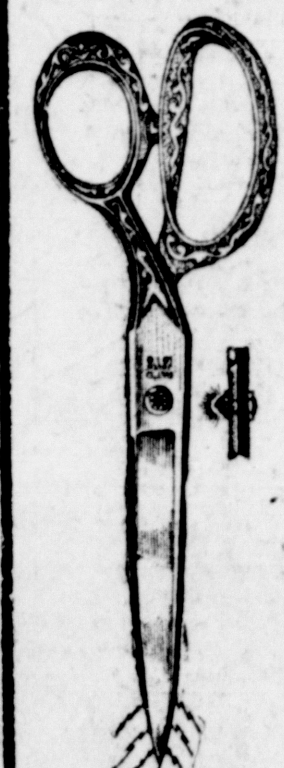

Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, is ambitious to take the light heavyweight crown, and equal the record of Bob Fitzsimmons, who held titles in three divisions.

Babe Ruth and Brick Owens, the umpire who recently chased him from a game, according to ball players, are good friends.

The Detroit Tigers this season have been going strong for former college players.
